

Scott Porter is a Senior Manager in the Toyota Production System Support Center. He assists organizations external to Toyota to build and sustain a Toyota Way culture using Toyota Production System methodologies. His customers are both in manufacturing as well as non-profits including food banks, colleges/universities and hospitals. Prior to his current position, Scott worked at an Assembly Shop Group Leader with Toyota at New United Motor Manufacturing Inc., and as Assistant Manager in a rotational assignment in the Operations Management Development Division. Before his work with Toyota, he performed duties as a Production Superintendent for Ford Motor Company. Scott holds a BS in Business Administration, Production and Operations Management from California State University, Chico.